PREFACE

This book is the result of work done because of the writer's desire to obtain a knowledge of his own ancestry, and that he might be in a position to hand down facts on this subject to his children.

The main family tree is found in Chart I and that tree for recent generations only is complete in all its branches. Notes as to the probable ancestry of William Wood of Earlsferry will be found on pp. 51-57.

Charts II to VI contain trees which are supplementary to the Wood tree, and in some cases those charts are followed by lists which further supplement the Wood tree by furnishing a complete statement of the descendants of certain collateral ancestors. These lists follow the charts to which they respectively refer, and they contain in full the descendants to the end of 1909 of the following individuals:

List I. John Kane (1759-1819) and his wife Maria Codwise (b. 1775).

List II. Samuel Redmond (d. 1825) and his wife Anne Ramage (d. 1848).

List III. Goold Hoyt (1769-1841) and his wife Sabina Sheaff.

List IV. James Wilmer (1775-1831) and his wife Ann Emerson.

List V. Jacques Benoît Félix de Chazournes (1795-1868) and his wife Marie Louise de Brugière (1804-1864).

In preparing the charts among the authorities consulted were the "East Neuk of Fife" by Rev. Walter Wood, second edition published in 1887; "Biographical Dictionary of Eminent Men of Fife" by M. F. Conolly, published 1866; "Autobiography of William Wood," printed for private circulation 1895; "Hoyt, Haight and Hight Families" by David W. Hoyt, printed 1871; "Historic Families of America" by Walter W. Spooner, printed 1907; "Old Kent; the Eastern Shore of Maryland" by George A. Hanson, printed 1876; "American Genealogy" by Jerome B. Holgate, published 1848; "Distinguished Families in America descended from Wilhelmus Beekman and Jan Thomasse Van Dyke" by William B. Aitken, published 1912, "Notice Genéalogique sur les familles du Fèvre et Arcis de Chazournes en Forez et Lyonnais" by A. Steyert, besides public documents in the New York Public Library, the British Museum, in Edinburgh and many private documents and letters in the possession of members of the family.

The lists of collateral descendants were prepared partly from the authorities above mentioned, but largely from data obtained from various members of the family as the result of an active correspondence involving the writing of many hundreds of letters.

The great importance of accuracy in such work was constantly kept in view, and every effort was made to avoid errors. It may be, however, that mistakes will be found, due either to the writer himself or to inaccuracies in the sources upon which he was forced to depend, although wherever practicable he has obtained a statement of the same facts from two or more sources. No individuals appear, in either charts or lists, who were born after the end of 1909, that being the end of the period covered. For the purpose of identification of individuals of similar name, and for other reasons, the years of birth have been given as far as the writer has been able to obtain them, but a complete statement of the dates of deaths has not been attempted, only those dates of deaths being included which were obtained from sources readily available.

In consulting the lists it will be observed that each individual has a number in the column at the left of the name. This number will be found again in brackets at the right of each of his or her descendants, thus making it easy to follow any single line direct from parent to child. Thus, for example, on page 11 in the First Generation will be found the name "2 Oliver Grenville Kane." In the Second Generation appear the names "16 John Grenville Kane (2)" and "17 Pierre Carné Kane (2)." The individual numbers of John Grenville Kane and Pierre Carné Kane are 16 and 17, respectively, while the number (2) to the right of each shows they are the children of Oliver Grenville Kane, his individual number being 2.

Gathered merely for the information of his children, it was not the writer's intention to publish this material, but he has been asked by so many members of the family for copies of the facts obtained that he decided to seek the assistance of the printer.

ERRATA.

Among the children of Alexander Wood, b. 1845, the following corrections should be noted:

1 Alexander B. Norbert Wood and Margaret Mary Wood, though born 1875, were not twins.

2 A son, Edward, born 1878, has been omitted.

3 The name Jiffes should be Jefferys.

ANCESTRY OF ANNE CHALMERS

1745-(abt.) 1820

* Rev. James Chalmers. "What he wanted in energy was amply made up by the vigorous activity of his wife. He was undistinguished by any superiority of talent, but he was distinguished by simple kindliness of disposition, which endeared him to his parishioners, and the remembrance of which lingered in the neighbourhood for 150 years after his death." ("Autobiography of William Wood," p. 8.)

† Anne Scrymgeour. Her brother, Dr. Henry Scrymgeour, was one of the physicians of Empress Catherine II of Russia, from whom he received a leather tankard mounted with silver, which is, in 1909, still in possession of the family.

LIST I

DESCENDANTS OF

John Kane (1759-1819) and Maria Codwise

TO THE END OF 1909

NOTE

It will simplify reference to this List if it be understood that the number to the left of an individual's name is that individual's number in the List, while the number to the right is the individual number of his parent. By the use of these numbers it becomes easy to trace the direct line of descent from parent to child, or of ascent from child to parent.

* Goold Hoyt. "He was married to Miss Elie. Dimon of Fairfield on 13th June 1765. They drove to Norwalk in the first chaise that came here, and the bridesmaids rode on horseback to Norwalk." During the Revolutionary War the town of Norwalk was being harried by the English, and as the army approached their house Mrs. Hoyt "put her servants (slaves they were then) with her children in the cellar, and she went out and met the commander and asked for protection as her husband had left, not being willing to take up arms. The request was granted and the house was saved." This would seem to show that Goold Hoyt was a staunch loyalist. (From letters in possession of the family.)

† Zerubbabell Hoyt. "The Estate of Zerub. Hoyt on the 'account of commonage,' Dec. 1721, was £342, there being only one or two others as large." "Hoyt, Haight and Light Families," p. 311.

‡ Walter Hoyt. He was one of the first settlers in Norwalk, Conn. In the Norwalk patent of 1686 Mr. Walter Hoyt is the fifth of the ten "proprietors of the Township of Norwalk" whose names are mentioned in that instrument, "they having possessed the land for more than twenty years last past." "Hoyt, Haight and Light Families," pp. 292-296.

§ Simon Hoyt. He was born in England before 1600, probably as early as 1595. He landed in Salem in 1638 or 1639 and very soon went to Charlestown, Mass., as one of its first settlers. Shortly afterwards he was one of the first settlers of Dorchester where "in 1633 he is given on a list as having two cows, and is therefore required to put up 40 feet of fence on the marsh." February 20th 1634 he "is mentioned as keeping one bull." From Dorchester he appears to have moved to Setuate, Mass., as he joined the church there 19th April 1635. In 1640 we find him at Windsor, Conn., where he appears to have prospered. He moved to Fairfield, Conn., about 1649, for mention is made of his buying land there in that year. He appears to have moved to Stamford before 1657 for he died there on 1st Septr of that year. It "appears he was an early settler of seven different towns in New England, and in most of them he was one of the first white residents. What an experience of pioneer life he must have had! Scarcely was he settled in one place before he gave up his home, with all its comforts, and started to subdue a new portion of the wilderness. Most of his children seem to have shared the spirit of their father; for in twenty years after his death no one having the name of Hoyt was left in either of these seven towns, except Stamford." "Hoyt, Haight and Light Families," pp. 286-292.

ANCESTRY OF NATHALIE WILMER

* Marie Antoinette Héloise Teisseire. At her home on east side of Broadway just above Bowling Green, on 20th January 1829, she gave the first fancy-dress ball ever given in New York. P. 59 "Autobiography of William Wood."

† Antoinette du Fèvre de Chazournes. In regard to her father we read: "Il ne laissa qu'une fille: Antoinette du Fèvre de Chazournes, née en 1723, qui porta le nom de Chazournes à la famille Arcis." P. 8 "Notice Généalogique sur les familles du Fevre et Arcis de Chazournes en Forez et Lyonnais," by A. Steyert.

‡ Pierre Teisseire. He was an officer in the French army, and was stationed at Jamaica, West Indies. During an insurrection, to protect his family he sent his wife and children to Germantown, Penna., but he was never heard of again and was doubtless killed by the insurrectionists. Before the French Revolution all French officers were of noble birth, but beyond this we know nothing of his ancestor.

§ Simon Wilmer. "Simon Wilmer and Rebecca Wilmer his wife, were the progenitors of the Wilmer Family of Kent. Simon Wilmer was a very prominent man in Old Kent. On the 12th of January 1693, he was elected one of the first vestry of St. Paul's Parish, and represented Kent in 1693 in the Legislature of Maryland." P. 325 "Old Kent. The Eastern Shore of Maryland," by George A. Hanson.

‖ Louise d'Anthoine. "She founded on the 16th August 1620, on account of a plague which was then raging in the country, the chapel of St. Roch which still (1900) exists upon a hill not far from Aurac." P. 6 "Notice Genealogique sur les familles du Fevre et Arcis de Chazournes en Forez et Lyonnais," by A. Steyert.

NOTE

It will simplify reference to this List if it be understood that the number to the left of an individual's name is that individual's number in the List, while the number to the right is the individual number of his parent. By the use of these numbers it becomes easy to trace the direct line of descent from parent to child, or of ascent from child to parent.

APPENDIX

Notes on Ancestry of William Wood of Earlsferry.

There has never been any question in regard to the descent of the family from William Wood of Earlsferry (1656-after 1720), but although the family tradition has always been that William Wood of Earlsferry was himself descended from Admiral Sir Andrew Wood of Largo (and in this connection the Largo coat of arms has been in use by the family as far back as we have any records) there has been some question as to which one of certain of the descendants of the Admiral was the direct ancestor of William Wood of Earlsferry. The writer has accordingly examined such documents as he has been able to obtain which bear on this point.

"In an 'Extract from unpublished account of the Woods of Earlsferry and Elie' by the late Rev. Walter Wood, author of the 'East Neuk of Fife,' there appear the following lines:

> 'The first of the family of whom I have any certain knowledge, is William Wood, merchant in Earlsferry. The tradition in the family has always been that he was of the Woods of Grange, who were themselves a branch of the Woods of Largo. It rather favors this tradition that the property which he possessed in Earlsferry was bounded by property belonging to the deceased Andrew Wood and of James Wood of Grange. For probably the whole three properties were originally one, belonging to Wood of Grange, and afterwards parcelled out among his descendants.' "

The paragraph quoted above appears in a letter written in 1912 by Rev. J. Wood Brown, who wrote the preface to the second edition of the "East Neuk of Fife," and who in that preface states that the father of William Wood in Earlsferry was Alexander Wood "in Carmurie." Rev. J. Wood Brown writes in the letter quoted above that he was led to the conclusion that the father of William Wood of Earlsferry was Alexander Wood "in Carmurie" by the discovery of an old brooch bearing the inscription "A. W. born ye 17th March 1653." He continues as follows:

> "This brooch belonged to my uncle's sister, who told me she had it from her mother, Mary Wood of Grangehill, and that it was an old family piece. I showed it to my uncle (the author of 'East Neuk of Fife') who copied the inscription but never worked the matter out; that was left for me to do. It seemed to me, and seems still, that the connection must be looked for through the A. W. of the brooch, whom I assumed to be a woman, and therefore, as born in 1653 probably a sister of our William. With this new idea I returned to the registers and found in that of Kilconquhar an Agnes Wood baptised in —— June 1654. Her parents were Alexander Wood in Kilconquhar and Agnes Pearson in Elie, who are thus described in the register of their marriage which I found in the Kilconquhar Session Record under date of 23 April 1650 (?1652). In the Elie Register for 1656 the same couple, now described, however, as resident 'in Carmurie' had a son baptised called William, and in 1658 a daughter called Christen. Finally on 10th July 1661 they had a son baptised John: 'Witnesses John Pearson, Andrew and James Wood.' This last entry appears in the Kilconquhar Register. The discrepancy which you will notice between the 'A. W. born ye 17th March 1653' (text of inscription on brooch) and the entry of Agnes Wood baptised —— June 1654 (Kilconquhar Record) is more apparent than real; the former referring to birth and the latter to baptism. If you will read again pp. 185-6 of 'East Neuk' you will see the disturbed condition of the country at that time, and will understand that a child might well have to wait many months in those days before it could be safely carried to church. I have little doubt that Agnes Wood is the A. W. of the brooch, and as she has, as she should, a brother William, and as Andrew and James Wood witness the baptism of her brother John, the probability that this William is ours tends to become a certainty. For thus appear again the names, if not the very persons, of that Andrew and James Wood who held properties immediately adjoining the house and land afterwards occupied by our William Wood in Earlsferry."

Assuming that the father of William Wood of Earlsferry was Alexander Wood "in Carmurie," the question then arises as to the parentage of Alexander Wood in Carmurie, and in this connection the history of the Carmurie property becomes of interest. An occasional reference to the chart facing page 58 will make the following remarks clearer.

In the middle of the 16th century the "barony" of Carmurie was owned by the Dishingtons of Ardros. William Dishington before 1543 married Elizabeth Crichton, but he appears to have died within a few years, and his widow after 1548 married Alexander Wood of Grange, the second son of Admiral Sir Andrew Wood of Largo. The Rev. J. Wood Brown writes: "I find Elizabeth Crichton described as 'Lady Carmurie' in 1575." She died in 1581. ("East Neuk of Fife," pp. 183, 215, 216.)

Alexander Wood of Grange sold the lands of Grange to his nephew James Wood of Lambeletham (p. 184, "East Neuk of Fife"). It would appear that in some way the Carmurie property also passed to this same James Wood from Elizabeth Crichton, for in the printed "Retours" (Inquis. Special No. 1529) under date 22nd October, 1596, Alexander Wod of Lambeletham appears as heir to James Wod of Lambeletham, his father, in (amongst other lands) "Drummeis and Carmurie" in Kilconquhar.

This Alexander Wood of Lambeletham (who in 1596 owned Carmurie) had a son James Wood, who was his heir. William Wood, an uncle of this James Wood, is spoken of as his "tutor," or, as we would say, guardian. William Wood had a son, David Wood, his heir ("East Neuk of Fife," pp. 184, 185).

Thus it would appear that the members of the family probably connected with the Carmurie property in the early part of the 17th century were the two brothers Alexander and William Wood and their respective sons James Wood and David Wood, and it would appear probable that Alexander Wood "in Carmurie" was descended from one of these four men.* On this point the Rev. J. Wood Brown writes as follows:

> "Neither the Alexander Wood of the "Retours," whose will is registered in 1606, nor William Wood, Tutor of Lambeletham, who died in or before 1613, can have been the father of Alexander Wood in Carmurie, who, as married in 1650, must be supposed born about 1625. To imagine him the son of James Wood of Grange (and Lambeletham) who married Margaret Munro c. 1620 ('East Neuk of Fife,' p. 185) does not contradict any obvious fact, and agrees

*On page 484 of "Biographical Dictionary of Eminent Men of Fife" it is stated that William Wood, the guardian, "appears to have had" three sons, Andrew, David and James, and that Andrew and David settled in Earlsferry, while James resided in Elie and was the father of William Wood of Earlsferry. It seems probable, however, that this statement is incorrect.

well with the neighborhood of William (of Earlsferry) Alexander's son, and James Wood of Grange (probably the later James the Rutemaster, 'East Neuk of Fife,' page 185) in their Earlsferry properties."

This does not appear unreasonable, but on the other hand, it is of course possible that the Carmurie property passed to William Wood, the guardian, and to his son David Wood, who may have been the father of Alexander Wood "in Carmurie." The circumstantial evidence that William Wood of Earlsferry was the son of Alexander Wood "in Carmurie" and was through him descended from the Woods of Grange and Admiral Sir Andrew Wood of Largo is strong, but the writer thinks it only proper to point out that the question as to the exact line of descent is not decided by any direct evidence in his possession, though such evidence may be obtained in a more extended examination of the very voluminous records of the Fife district than the writer has found it possible to undertake.

The Family of Wood: Admiral Sir Andrew Wood of Largo.

"The name of Wood occurs at an early period in Scottish annals. William de Bosco [Wood] was Cancellarius Regis, and is mentioned from 1170 to 1246. The Woods of Craig in Augus of Bonnyton in the same county, and of Golpny in Aberdeen, were all of them ancient families, probably springing from one common stock. The Woods of Largo, the only branch belonging to the County of Fife, were founded by Admiral Sir Andrew Wood, the first Laird of Largo." "This noted ocean warrior is generally stated to have been born about the middle of the fifteenth century at the old kirkton of Largo. The only evidence bearing on this point, however, is a charter in his favor in 1490, giving to him and his wife the cotelands and milne lands of Largo, which formerly belonged to Helen Arnot, daughter and heiress of the deceased John Arnot of Largo, and the spouse of the deceased William Wood, and which were resigned by her. Such a charter might, of course, follow on a purchase of these lands by Sir Andrew from Helen Wood, but it is also possible that William Wood and Helen Wood (Arnot), were the father and mother of the Admiral. Sir Andrew may have been descended from the Woods of Bonnyton in Augus, as Abercrombie says he was. There appears, at any rate, to have been some acknowledged affinity between the families, for as early as 1511 there is confirmation of a charter by Sir Andrew Wood of Largo, in favour of Walter Wood of Bonnyton." Pp. 482 and 485, "Biographical Dictionary of Eminent Men of Fife."

Of Admiral Sir Andrew Wood "The East Neuk of Fife" contains many picturesque details (pp. 63-85) of which the following are a few. He "is famed in the history of his country no less for his faithful adherence to his sovereign when abandoned by his nobles, than for his courage and naval skill." "His genius for naval warfare had been cultivated by his frequent encounters with French, English and Portugese pirates, in defence of his ships and merchandise as a Leith merchant-trader." "Prior to 1487 he appears to have entirely given up trading as a merchant, and to have devoted himself to the service of the King." He possessed and commanded two armed vessels of about 300 tons each, called the "Mayflower" and the "Yellow Caravel," and it is these vessels which appear in his coat of arms, the third and larger vessel being supposed to be the vessel commanded by the English captain Stephan Bull, who in July 1490 set sail from London with "three vessels, manned by picked mariners, a body of crossbow and pikeman, with various Knights who volunteered their services, intending to intercept Sir Andrew on his return voyage from Holland, whither he had been convoying a fleet of Scottish merchantmen." Bull cast anchor east of the May, and one summer morning, directly after dawn, two ships were descried coming under sail by St. Abbs Head. These proved to be Wood's ships, and "the sun had now risen, and shone full upon the English vessels, displaying their magnitude to the eyes of the Scots. By skillful management Wood got to windward of the foe, and immediately a close and furious combat ensued, which lasted till night. The shores of Fife were, during the whole day thronged with spectators, who by their shouts and gesticulations expressed their alternate hopes and fears. During the night the combatants lay by to refresh and refit; at the dawn the trumpets sounded again to arms. . . . At length the valour and seamanship of Wood prevailed; the three English ships were captured and brought into Dundee, while Bull was taken to Edinburgh, and presented to the King . . . As a mark of royal favour, Sir Andrew received a charter under the Great Seal, of date 14th May, 1491, in which license is given him to 'build a castle at Largo with iron gates, on account of the great services done, and losses sustained by the said Andrew, and for the services it was confidently hoped he would yet render; and because the said Andrew had, at great personal expense, built certain houses and a fortalice on the lands at Largo, by the hands of Englishmen captured by him, with the object of resisting and expelling pirates, who had often invaded the Kingdom and attacked the lieges.'"

Of the above battle we read in the "Biographical Dictionary of Eminent Men of Fife," "Then ensued that famous naval combat of which historians give so full an account, and which the minstrals of the day celebrated throughout Europe.

'The Scotsmen fought like lions bold,
And many English slew;
The slaughter that they made that day,
The English folk shall rue.

The battle fiercely it was fought
Near the craig of Basse;
When next we fight the English loons,
May nae waur come to pass'."

The Admiral "is described by Mr. Tytler as 'a brave warrior and skillful naval commander an able financialist, intimately acquainted with the management of commercial transactions, and a stalwart feudal baron, who, without abating anything of his pride and his prerogative, refused not to adopt, in the management of his estates, some of those improvements whose good effects he had observed in his travels over various parts of the continent.'"—"Biographical Dictionary of Eminent Men of Fife," page 488.

Sir Andrew appears to have prospered, for in 1511 there is a charter by which King James confirms a sale of certain lands "'to an honourable man, Andrew Wood of Largo, and his spouse, on account of a certain sum of money gratuitously and wholly discharged for me, in mea magna exigentia et urgente necessitate.'"

" 'From the time of the defeat of Stephen Bull, Sir Andrew held a place very near the throne, and his wise counsels, especially in commercial matters, were much listened to by the King.' "

In 1513 Sir Andrew resigned his lands to the King and on the 21 August of that year received a new charter " 'granting to him and his wife the lands of Largo as before described, the lands of Fawfields and Frostlees and Brewerslands, united into a barony for ever' " . . . "Sir Andrew, now an aged man, appears to have retired after this from public life, and to have spent his remaining days in his castle of Largo. Sir Andrew married Elizabeth Lundin before 1487, and he died in 1521. The arms of Sir Andrew Wood of Largo are "azure, an oak-tree growing out of a mount, in base, or, between two ships under sail Arg. Crest—a ship under sail, ppr. Motto—"Tutus in Undis."
